

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to an ophthalmic solution comprising a prostaglandin compound and viscosity-increasing compound. The ophthalmic solution of the invention can provide elongated duration of the effect when 5 administrated topically to the eyes of a patient.